In the following 11-sentence paragraph, identify the FIRST AND SECOND MAIN SUPPORTING SENTENCES (4 Marks):

Monday is the day that I hate the most. The weekend has come to its inevitable end. I will have no more parties for a week, no more fun and nothing to look forward to. Additionally, I cannot sleep in and get the amount of rest I need to function at my best. After the weekend has past, I have to go back to school. School means getting up at the crack dawn, being tired all of the time and studying things that I don't care about. Furthermore, I meet up with my enemies, and worse, my teachers. Finally, Monday is the beginning of a long, gruelling week. I have a terrible future for the next five days with no get-togethers with my friends. As well as a terrible future, I can expect to be tired from constant reading, homework, writing and hanging around the house. In conclusion, since my wondrous weekend has vanished, school has raised its tedious head, and a long, almost never-ending week of tedium awaits me, Monday is a day I absolutely can do without.
